FINE GAEL LEADER'S STIRRING APPEAL

Mr. Dwyer Pleads for National Unity

TWENTY thousand people crowded College Green, Dublin, yesterday, to hear Mr. Cosgrave insist that Eire must be made an attraction to the North, thus reversing the present position, in which the North was an attraction to Eire.

"There must be some agreement here of the political parties on the one big question," he said, "and, having got agreement on that, we have got to see that our economic problems are settled, and that the rule of law is obeyed here."

Mr. Cosgrave maintained that if the support of the people was given in this election to Fine Gael they would have a new orientation of thought in the country, doing away with the bitterness and conflict of the last 20 years.

Mr. Cosgrave said that all over the country, where he had been touring for the past fortnight, there was an almost universal acceptance of their proposal to form a national government. Their responsibility for doing that, of course, depended entirely on the votes of the people.

This terrible conflict that had torn mankind asunder, Mr. Cosgrave said, had been, by the mercy of God, kept from this country, and, with the help of God, it would continue to be kept from this country. In so far as the genius or power of man could help that, it was much more likely to be accomplished by a united government set-up of the different political parties in the State, acting in co-operation and on the strength and goodwill and good wishes of the people of the country.

The output of the agricultural industry in this country had diminished in the last ten or eleven years. The proposal of his party, if returned to power, was to endeavour to improve the agricultural production of the country. It was not being done at the moment for in this period of their history there had been a shortage of potatoes, their butter was rationed, and bacon was almost unobtainable.

Dr. O'Higgins had told the Government in the Dail that there would be a shortage 12 months ago, and he was laughed at. The Government had forbidden the importation of foreign bacon, and they all thought that they would be eating Irish bacon. The fact was, however, that the consumption of Irish bacon went down in consequence of the high price, and some 18 months ago the Government, without any notice to the farmers, reduced the price of pigs by about 18s. a cwt. The farmers had been feeding their pigs with high-priced feeding-stuffs, and, naturally, they were not going to continue producing an article that was not economic.

THE PEACE TREATY

Twenty-one years ago two great men and three others signed the Treaty of peace with Great Britain. Many people at that time had suspicions as to whether the British would keep their word. Many people thought that owing to the close proximity of this country to Britain we would not have the same autonomy and independence as Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

For five years one section of the political community of this country remained outside the Dail, and it took them five years to make up their minds that Collins and Griffith were right. That party then went into the Dail and began an economic dispute with Great Britain, which cost this country millions. Having then made peace with Britain they reversed their view and said that the British market, which they had declared gone for ever, was now the only one open for the Irish farmer.

They were harnessing the Liffey now, the Fine Gael leader continued, and for that scheme all honour was due to a Senator whom he, Mr. Cosgrave, had nominated—the late Sir John Griffith, who had been described as an Imperialist, but who had planned that scheme for twenty years, at a cost of £10,000 of his own money. That was the best proof of the patriotism of the man who had been described as an Imperialist.

Some of their opponents, Mr. Cosgrave said, now dragged out statements made 16 years ago and conflicted the two terms, coalition and national. What his party wanted was a National Government, not coalition. He proposed, with the goodwill of the other political parties in the State, and supported by the people, to deal with the new problems facing them at this critical stage, and he proposed to ask all Irishmen to take their share of responsibility in dealing with these problems. They could no longer afford to mark time. The efforts of the last twenty years were not up to the standard they should have been.

Mr. Cosgrave, later in the day, addressed one of the biggest Fine Gael meetings ever held in Dun Laoghaire. His son, Mr. Liam Cosgrave, candidate, asked how could Mr. de Valera have taken over the ports if Collins and Griffith had not had the courage and the statesmanship to accept the Treaty of 1922. It was on their great work that our right to remain neutral today was based.

General Mulcahy said it was imperative to make Leinster House of 1943 as bright and glorious an inspiration to our people as the G.P.O. in 1916 was made for those who had to face the political difficulties which then stood in the way of achieving national liberty.

Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C., T.D., one of the candidates, said he brought a message from Mr. P. McGilligan, T.D., who is ill and had had to undergo a serious operation. No one, he said, could replace Mr. McGilligan, who had devoted all his energies and services to the people of this State. He had brought credit to this country by his conduct in international affairs at Geneva and the Imperial Conference. He had brought credit to himself and renown to this country by his efforts, his ability and his personality.

Mr. Dwyer Quotes Wolfe Tone

FINE GAEL RALLY

Produced What the People Wanted

DESPITE the war, Fianna Fail administration had produced the results the people wanted—neutrality, reasonable supplies of goods, and protection of the nation's economic organisation from permanent damage, said Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce and Supplies, at a meeting in Carlow on Saturday. The rise in prices—inevitable in all wars—had been regulated by the Government. In fact there had been no variation in the cost of living index for the past nine months. Profits, dividends, salaries and wages had been controlled to save the country from the disaster of an economic collapse due to uncontrolled inflation which would bring terrible hardships upon the workers in particular. If, he added, there was a new Government elected it would be entitled to the loyalty of the people, and Fianna Fail would respect the people's decision.

At Rathdowney Mr. Lemass said that when a second front was established hostilities would be resumed around our coast and the country would have to be guided so wisely as to avoid any risk of endangering our neutrality.

Speaking at Portlaoighise last night, Mr. Lemass said that this was the first time the Government had the responsibility for managing the nation's business during a world war. They knew that all the measures they adopted did not achieve the results they intended, but they believed that the retention of these measures was essential in the national interests.

Proud of Trade Union Act

"Bringing people like so many pigs or cattle to feed out of the same trough" was Mr. MacEntee's description of communal meals given at a meeting in Crumlin, County Dublin, yesterday. He, as Minister for Local Government, had said "No" to these attempts to organise communal feeding. Instead he had tried to ensure that in every house there would be a proper supply of fuel to cook the family meals in the home, and the Government had been successful in doing this last winter.

Referring to the Trade Union Act, Mr. MacEntee said he was as proud of being the author of that Act as he was of having been given a special mission by James Connolly in Easter Week, 1916—a mission that he fulfilled, and then reported back to Connolly in the Post Office on Thursday of Easter Week.

When the result of the election was known they would abide by the people's decision, said Mr. MacEntee at Harold's Cross on Saturday. The day on which personal resentments were ended would be a good day indeed for the Irish people. But the first step was a recognition of the great services which the Taoiseach had rendered.

Mr. Aiken Answers Hecklers

Speaking at Kells, County Meath, Mr. Frank Aiken said that Fianna Fail had succeeded in bringing the country forward to being, as far as the twenty-six counties are concerned, a free sovereign and independent State. To-day, in the midst of a world war, there was no guarantee that they would be left alone, although they had escaped so far. Their best guarantee was the determination of their young men that if any foreigners attempted to set foot in this country they would be made to pay dearly for it.

Replying to hecklers at Trim, Mr. Aiken said that the Fianna Fail policy would have been more successful if the other parties had co-operated with the Government.

Replying to shouts of "Up Labour," Mr. G. Boland, at Longford, said that Fianna Fail had done more for Labour than any other country in Europe, and one of their best measures was the Trade Union Act, which made possible what the best Labour leaders of the past had wished for—a strong Labour union—the slogan of 1913, making for better Labour conditions and stability in industry.

Mr. Cosgrave's "New Love" for Taoiseach

Deputy Cosgrave will cry his eyes out if he does not get a chance now to ask Mr. de Valera to sit round a table with him in a Coalition Government, said Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly at Marlborough street yesterday.

Why did he refuse, no later than last month, to sit in the Council of State, under the Chairmanship of our beloved President, Dr. Douglas Hyde? asked Mr. O'Kelly. "For no other reason that I know of except that he would have to sit in the same room as Dev. Now he is breaking his neck to shake hands with Dev.

"All he wants is an early chance to put his arms round Dev's neck. Even though he would not sit in the one room with Dev. since 1921, he is begging the electors now to direct him to demonstrate his newly discovered brotherly love and affection for Ireland's Taoiseach. Is Wily Willy going to get away with all this humbug? I don't think so." we have no National Government, in which we differ from England and from all Europe." His advice was ignored, said Mr. Dwyer, and nine years later, in 1800, the Act of Union was passed.

"I dread the thought of the disaster which may befall this country if this insane war between the two branches of Sinn Fein is to continue any longer," Mr. Dwyer continued.

"The two big parties—Fianna Fail and Fine Gael—have the one and the same policy, but there is this vast difference between the men who lead them: Mr. Cosgrave has done the biggest thing in his life by offering the olive branch to Mr. de Valera. Would not Mr. de Valera, even at this eleventh hour in this election, take the friendship offered him by his old comrades?

Mr. Maurice Dockrell, in reply to a cry of "Up Dev," said that what they wanted was to get away from cries like that and get down to ordinary bread and butter politics. Fine Gael's policy for National Government included the improvement of housing, hospital accommodation, and agriculture. These things were in the forefront of their programme. More than 90 per cent. of the present Government's actions had been mere political ballyhoo and very little commonsense politics.

Dr. T. F. O'Higgins also spoke, and the Lord Mayor of Dublin presided.

Ensuring a Profit for Farmers

If our farmers are to produce an exportable surplus out of the land after this war they must be ensured a profit on their production, declared Mr. James M. Dillon, Independent Candidate for County Monaghan, yesterday, when, at Ballybay, he advocated de-rating of agricultural land and exempting from taxation improvements made by farmers on their holdings. He promised that, if returned to the Dail, he would do his utmost to secure that all taxation and restrictions would be removed from such agricultural essentials as scythes, buckets, spades, shovels, forks, feeding stuffs, artificial manures and agricultural machinery.

Speaking at Clones, Mr. Dillon said he had visited Sydney to explain to statesmen there that it was in the interests of the whole Commonwealth of Nations that partition should be abolished. He wanted to remove from the gangster and the gun bully the excuse that he was trying to abolish the border.

"Labour Fooling People with Promises"

MR. DE VALERA continued to attack the Labour Party and the system of National Government in his week-end speeches at Cork, Nenagh, Athlone and Mullingar, which wound up his tour of over 2,000 miles.

"If we are not returned in sufficient strength to form our Government," Mr. de Valera said, "we are not going to go bargaining behind closed doors." He once again challenged the other parties to produce a policy for the people before the election.

If we were out of the way to-morrow, the Taoiseach declared, the other parties would be fighting just as bitterly between themselves as they are fighting with us. "In my opinion you, as reasonable people, have hardly any choice in this election. If you want people with a policy, who believe in it, and who carry it out, then you have no choice."

Mr. de Valera stressed the importance of policy above personality, and urged the value of a policy that reserved the home market for the farmers, and concurrently encouraged the development of the nation's resources. If, he said, you get into a position where you have a coalition government that bargains and changes policy overnight, living from hand to mouth, you cannot have progress. We believe in working steadily. We may come up against obstacles and go slowly for a time, but every day progress is being made.

HEAVY TAX WOULD CLOSE FACTORIES

Commenting on the Labour Party promises, he said that their implimentation would mean the closing of factories because of heavy taxation. Employers were doing a public service by giving employment. Some times, he added, you find Labour leaders attacking people who are using their capital at home in trying to give empolyment. Don't forget that these employers are benefactors, helping the community.

"Labour is simply fooling the people with their promises. In my opinion, it is an insult to the intelligence of our people to put projects before them without showing how they can be achieved."

After ten years' experience of our policy from inside, Mr. de Valera declared—I am convinced now more than I was in 1917 that it is the only one that is a fair test. Recalling that since 1922 the average life of the Parliament had been 2½ years, he expressed the opinion that the life of the Dail should be six years. In a time of crisis like this it was unfortunate that a government should have to come to the people, particularly when a majority of the people did not want an election.

Commenting on the position of the freedom of the twenty-six counties he remarked: "Unfortunately, some foolish people do not wish to see that themselves."

FREE CONSTITUTION

Mr. de Valera also spoke of the national organisation from 1917 to 1921 and the subsequent division, and said that in 1926, when they were pulling in opposite directions, it was clear that if there was to be any national advance some method would have to be got so that the people would come together and start again on the march towards the old objective. "We took the situation as we found it," he said, "we got rid of the objectionable clauses of the Treaty until we were able to bring you your own free constitution."

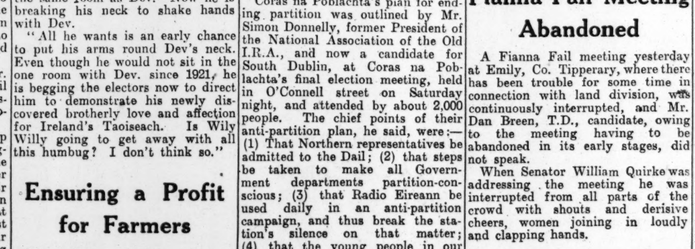

Coras Six-Point Plan To End Partition

Coras na Poblachta's plan for ending partition was outlined by Mr. Simon Donnelly, former President of the National Association of the Old I.R.A., and now a candidate for South Dublin, at Coras na Poblachta's final election meeting, held in O'Connell street on Saturday night, and attended by about 2,000 people. The chief points of their anti-partition plan, he said, were:—(1) That Northern representatives be admitted to the Dail; (2) that steps be taken to make all Government departments partition-conscious; (3) that Radio Eireann be used daily in an anti-partition campaign, and thus break the station's silence on that matter; (4) that the young people in our schools be made partition conscious, and, in particular, be made aware that our people in the North were committed to England's war because we had deserted them; (5) that money be set aside to support a virile campaign in the six counties to deal with the question of partition; (6) that our Army and Civil Service should be open to people from the North.

Reply to Fianna Fail Claims

The right to neutrality was secured by the Treaty and the Statute of Westminster, in the absence of which we could not be neutral, said Mr. R. Brereton Barry, candidate, at Wicklow, referring to the claims of Fianna Fail to responsibility for obtaining and maintaining neutrality.

A National Government, he said, would lift Irish politics to a higher plane and eliminate personal quarrels and personal bitternesses. If Mr. Cosgrave got authority from the Irish people to establish a National Government he did not believe it would be resisted by any man or party.

University Voters and the Dail Election

By Our Political Correspondent.

A CERTAIN amount of misapprehension appears to exist as to the right of electors who are on the register for the election of Senators in the University constituencies to vote for candidates for the Dail. Some of those who are on the register of Dail electors propose to abstain, because they intend to exercise the franchise in the Senate elections.

This misunderstanding appears to arise from a condition which existed formerly, when the Universities had special representatives in the Dail. At that time University electors were obliged to indicate beforehand whether they intended to vote on the University register or on the general register. That condition no longer exists.

It appears to be quite clear that while University electors are privileged to vote for their own candidates for the Senate they are not disfranchised from voting for Dail candidates. An eminent University authority, who is also associated with the Senate, assured me last night that he intended to vote in the Dail election to-morrow.

MR. NORTON Ministers' Pensions Condemned

Mr. W. Norton, T.D., at a Labour rally in Muinebheag yesterday, said that Mr. Lemass wondered where the money will come from to pay workers a decent wage, but he does not wonder where it comes from to pay Ministerial pensions or to pay big salaries to their political friends.

When a Minister made a mistake in Japan, they gave him a gun, and nothing more was heard of him, but in this country we put them out of office and give them a pension of £500 a year for life, said Mr. William Norton, T.D., at a Labour meeting in Dundalk. The Government could only give a poor widow with four children a non-contributory widow's pension of 9s. per week, but they could give a Minister who had been a failure £10 a week for life. That was a living mockery of the flowery terms of the Constitution of which Mr. de Valera thought so much.

Mr. James Larkin, senior, who vigorously attacked the Trades Union Bill, said that Mr. de Valera was a gentleman and a scholar, but he was living in the eleventh century and did not know the day-to-day problems of the Irish working classes.

National Government Only Solution

Speaking at Synge street yesterday, Mr. Vincent Rice, K.C., Independent National Government candidate for Dublin City South, said that he had decided a few months ago to stand in this election for the policy of setting up a National Government. The support for that policy, at the time when he took that decision, was only a thin, small trickle; now it was a rushing stream. The future and the salvation of our country in the emergency that now faced it was to be found only in a Government composed of men of patriotism and goodwill drawn from the representatives of every section of opinion amongst our people. If the people failed to avail themselves on Tuesday next of the opportunity to get a National Government, they would condemn themselves to another five or six years of party strife and controversy, and that in a period of emergency greater than any that they had ever to face before.

Fianna Fail Meeting Abandoned

A Fianna Fail meeting yesterday at Emly, Co. Tipperary, where there has been trouble for some time in connection with land division, was continuously interrupted, and Mr. Dan Breen, T.D., candidate, owing to the meeting having to be abandoned in its early stages, did not speak.

When Senator William Quirke was addressing the meeting he was interrupted from all parts of the crowd with shouts and derisive cheers, women joining in loudly and clapping hands.

"Neutrality Depends on Food"

The policy of neutrality—let it be for good or bad—depends upon the food situation in this country, said Mr. P. Belton, T.D., speaking at Sundrive road, Crumlin, Dublin, yesterday. Last year, he said, there was a shortage of bread; a few weeks ago there had been a shortage of potatoes. If those shortages had come together there would have been a famine, in which event the country could not have maintained its policy of neutrality.

No Sinkings in West Atlantic

No sinkings of Allied or neutral merchantmen in the western Atlantic were announced last week, says a message from New York. This is the first time since Pearl Harbour that no losses have been reported in two successive weeks.—(Associated Press.)

U.S. Casualties 89,503

American casualties from the outbreak of war whose next-of-kin have been notified total 89,503, states the Office of War Information at Washington.

The total, combining War and Navy Department reports, includes:—Dead, 15,029; wounded, 21,101; missing, 32,883; prisoners of war, 20,490.

Army total is 62,887, and Navy 26,616.

FIVE-DAY FIGHT WITH U-BOATS

LAST night a joint British Admiralty and Air Ministry communiqué told of a 120-hour battle last month against one of the fiercest and most sustained offensives ever mounted by U-boats.

The communiqué stated:—

"Combined forces of escort ships and aircraft of the Royal Navy and of aircraft of Coastal Command, working in closest co-operation, successfully defended valuable Atlantic convoys against one of the fiercest and most sustained offensives ever mounted by U-boats. The battle, which took place during May, ranged over hundreds of miles, and extended intermittently throughout five days and five nights.

"So effective were the counter-attacks of the air and surface escort forces that most of the engagements were fought many miles distant from the convoys. During these actions two U-boats were destroyed, three were probably destroyed, and others may have been damaged. Ninety-seven per cent. of the ships forming the convoys reached harbour in safety, and without having been molested.

BATTLE OPENED

"The battle began when two of a large number of U-boats operating in the vicinity of a convoy were sighted by aircraft of the Fleet Air Arm from the escort-carrier H.M.S. Biter. The aircraft attacked the U-boats with depth charges and machine-gun fire, forcing them to dive. Later shore-based aircraft joined the escort forces. A Liberator aircraft attacked a U-boat fifteen miles from the surface escorts and left the enemy disabled.

"Meanwhile naval aircraft were attacking another U-boat. They led the destroyer H.M.S. Broadway and the frigate H.M.S. Lagan towards the enemy. Both ships attacked in turn. H.M.S. Broadway's second attack was followed by muffled under-water explosions, and wreckage of definitely German origin floated to the surface of the sea. This U-boat is considered sunk.

"Additional aircraft of Coastal Command, including Sunderlands, Catalinas and Fortresses, joined in the protection of the convoys, and more attacks on the U-boat packs were made in quick succession. Later a Sunderland aircraft led H.M.S. Lagan and the corvette H.M.C.S. Drumheller to a U-boat, which was attacked and may have been sunk. Quantities of wreckage floated to the surface.

"While these engagement were in progress a strong force of U-boats which had worked round ahead of another convoy was attacked by the destroyer H.M.S. Hesperus. H.M.S. Hesperus closed with a U-boat, which either dived or sank as the destroyer passed over her. H.M.S. Hesperus sighted a second U-boat on the surface and attacked it by gunfire. The destroyer completed her attack by ramming the U-boat, which is believed to have been destroyed. Next day H.M.S. Hesperus hunted, successfully attacked and sank a third U-boat, oil and wreckage floating to the surface."

Butter Storage in 1941

A communiqué by the Department of Agriculture on Saturday states:—

"The attention of the Minister for Agriculture has been drawn to a statement in the Press of 17th instant attributed to Mr. G. D. Findlater, chairman of Messrs. Alex. Findlater and Co., Ltd., 30 Upper O'Connell street, Dublin. Mr. Findlater is reported as stating that during the winter of 1941 his firm sought authority to store an additional 1,000 boxes of creamery butter. The facts are that, sanction was issued to the firm in June, 1941, to store 2,000 cwt. of butter. Presumably the firm was then satisfied that this quantity was sufficient for its winter trade. On 20th September, 1941, the firm sought sanction to store an additional 500 cwt. of creamery butter. The application of the firm was received much too late to enable sanction to the issue, as by that date all arrangements for storage for the season were nearing completion, and butter could not have been obtained by the firm save at the expense of other storers. Had the firm correctly estimated its needs earlier in the season no obstacle would have been placed in its way in securing as much butter for store as needed.

"The Minister's statement that enough butter was not stored by merchants for the winter season of 1941-'42 was based on the fact that many merchants who normally stored butter for their winter needs did not do so in 1941, or only stored small quantities."

Mr. G. D. Findlater informs the Irish Times that the communiqué confirms his remarks, except in regard to the reason given for the refusal of permission to store. The Department's letter, in response to the firm's application, was: "Arrangements have been completed for the storage of ample supplies to meet the coming winter's requirements."

Mr. Findlater adds:—

"It should be pointed out with regard to the last paragraph of the statement that, as no butter could be cold stored without the Department's sanction, the Department were aware week by week that insufficient butter was being stored, and should have taken action in midsummer, 1941, instead of delaying until February, 1942. If, according to the statement, other traders had not stored as much as they should then there should have been a surplus available for storage, which could have been granted to my firm.

"As there was, according to the statement, insufficient butter to enable them to grant us an extra 1,000 boxes, the Government must have known then of the shortage, yet nothing was said or done till the following February, when the traders were held to blame.

"Margarine went completely off the market at the end of August, 1941, hence the date of my firm's application for a permit for an additional quantity was not due to an incorrect estimation earlier in the year."

U.S. Amphibious Force 'Ready'

RAIDS ON SICILY AND ITALY

THE United States has ready a powerful army and Navy amphibious force, which may invade Europe, the Navy Department stated yesterday in Washington. Untold thousands of soldiers and blue-jackets are "ready to carry out with speed, precision and perfect co-ordination a landing on a fortified hostile shore," said the statement.

A communiqué issued in Cairo by the U.S. Ninth Air Force yesterday said:—

"Nearly 250,000lbs. of high explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped on Reggio di Calabria and San Giovanni by Liberator heavy bombers during mass raids in daylight on Saturday.

"At Reggio di Calabria hits were concentrated on the south-east harbour area and considerable smoke was observed rising from the area. Other hits were observed near the railway station and sidings.

"At San Giovanni hits were observed in the ferry terminal area and railroad sidings. Others were seen near a ship in the Straits of Messina.

"Persistent fighter opposition was encountered. One enemy aircraft was destroyed, with four others listed as probably destroyed. All our aircraft returned."

Yesterday's communiqué from Allied Headquarters, North Africa, said:—"During Friday night Wellington bombers attacked Syracuse, in Sicily. Bombs burst on the docks and port installations."

Railway Targets

The Malta communiqué stated:—"Intruder aircraft of the Malta Command on Saturday night attacked railway targets in western Italy. Hits were scored on stations and sidings, and fire broke out in one locality. Naval aircraft attacked E-boats and shipping off the east coast of Sicily."

The Italian communiqué:—"Intensified enemy shipping along the North African routes was again hammered on Saturday by our torpedo-carrying 'planes. Off Bone they sank a ship of 10,000 tons. Two other ships, totalling 17,000 tons, were also hit. Italian and German bombers attacked the ports of Bizerta and Pantelleria with good results."

Reuter's special correspondent at Allied Headquarters, North Africa, describing the R.A.F. attack on Syracuse, said that 4,000-lb. bombs exploded in the district west of the canal and north of the harbour station. Many fires broke out.

Girl Shot Dead Near Ashford

MISS KATHLEEN BYRNE (34), daughter of Mr. Thomas Byrne, Ard-na-Greina, Rathdrum, was the victim of a shooting tragedy at the house of her employer, Mr. J. V. Tyner, farmer, Coolavin, near Ashford. Her mutilated body was found within fifty yards of the residence.

As Miss Byrne was absent for some hours from the house yesterday morning, the police were communicated with, and Sergeant Silke, on searching the house, found a double-barrelled shot-gun, which had recently been discharged. Panes of glass in a back window were shot out, and pellets were found embedded in the woodwork.

The girl's body was found on the lawn. Her face was unrecognisable, and both hands were badly injured. Later in the day Dr. J. McGrath, State Pathologist, held a post-mortem examination of the remains.

It is understood that a young man has been detained.

Russians Beat Off 50 Attacks

RUSSIAN troops are holding their newly-won positions around Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow, in face of concentrated German counter-attacks. They have beaten off 50 such attacks, and have consolidated their fresh positions on the north-eastern edge of the German bulge, said Moscow radio last night.

"The Germans have suffered considerable losses in men and tanks," the announcer said. "That is why the enemy is drawing on reserves on this sector. Our units have forced the water barriers and have firmly consolidated themselves on their positions." The Germans attacked with tank support, but the Russian defences were well supplied with anti-tank weapons, which enabled them to beat back the most violent attacks. Over 2,000 casualties were also inflicted on the Germans in unsuccessful counter-attacks north-west of Mtsensk, 30 miles north-east of Orel.

NATION-WIDE AMERICAN COAL STRIKE

This followed a vital conference between the United Mineworkers' representatives and the mine owners on the "door to door" wage claim which ended without any agreement.

The Policy Committee of the United Mineworkers unanimously approved a long statement in which they refused to call back their members—totalling 558,000 to the pits by this morning.

The miners have offered to negotiate with Mr. Ickes to work and continue the production of coal for the Government itself.

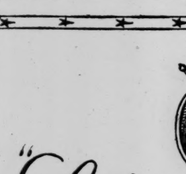

Mr. Lewis at the conference refused to recognise the War Labour Board's authority or to sign the contract as directed by the Board.

The decision has brought expressions of concern from managements of steel-making plants. One company in Pittsburgh estimated that the effect of a general coal strike will be felt within 24 hours, and "in a very few days" production of steel would drop to 75 per cent.

The breakdown may force President Roosevelt to sign the bill now before him making strikes illegal, and providing prison sentences for persons encouraging or fomenting strikes.

Galway Drowning

Joseph O'Donnell (22), Galway, was drowned in Galway Docks yesterday, when a dinghy in which he was sailing capsized in a strong gale.

"Champagne" is a triumph of that creative genius that has made the name COTY synonymous with fashion in the feminine world.
"Champagne" possesses that remarkable distinction of being a shade which will harmonise with any type of make-up for Blonde, Brunette, or Titian.
Also important is the fact that "Champagne" is made by the exclusive "Air Spun" process, which prevents enlarged pores and helps to preserve a healthy, youthful skin.

A LABOUR GOVERNMENT WILL GUARANTEE:

TO FARMERS

TO COTTAGE TENANTS

VOTE LABOUR

CO. DUBLIN CONSTITUENCY.

ELECTORS!

Our essentials now are Food, Fuel and Work. He produces them in abundance. With them we can preserve our neutrality. Without them we must enter the War and face the bombs. His action in the Dail has already saved the food position and averted famine. He produced 3,000 tons of food, 50,000 gallons of milk and 30,000 tons of fuel last year. He built quite a town in Belton Park in the last decade. He is the largest employer in the constituency. He pays trade union wages. He has building schemes running into millions sterling ready for post-war. He is an old soldier in the fight for freedom. He is at the top of the ballot paper and his achievements and service to the Nation entitle him to be put at the top of the Poll. He asks his constituents to give him an overwhelming vote as a protest against the Government's refusal to supply petrol for the transport of wood fuel to Dun Laoghaire and other parts of the constituency. A vote for him is a vote for Fuel for the winter.

Fine Performance By Mountain Loch

THE £500 Phœnix Hurdle, at Phœnix Park on Saturday, was won in decisive style by Mountain Loch, owned and trained by Dr. C. P. Corbett, of Buttevant, who has bred several other good winners from the same dam, Juliana. It was a splendidly run race, and the success of Mountain Loch, winner over the same course and distance a few weeks ago was a very popular one, as he started a clear favourite. Point d'Atout, reproducing for the first time this season something of the form he showed when winning the Galway Hurdle last year, ran into second place, a length in front of Camerione, with the penalised Baldoyle winner, Golspie and the consistent Rockleigh and Dun Angus just behind the placed trio.

Gloriana, half-sister to the Phœnix Plate winner, Enchantress, regained something of the reputation she had lost at Leopardstown by winning the Boyd-Rochfort Plate in decisive style for Mrs. Wellesley, who bred the filly.

Clontarf in Final

IT was not easy to get runs at Anglesea road on last Saturday. Clontarf beat Merrion by four wickets, and so qualified for the final of the Senior Cup, which will be played on Saturday, July 3rd. First innings was not much advantage to Merrion, and they totalled only 67. W. Lindsay's 28 being much the biggest score for them, a sound and attractive innings.

Clontarf rapidly lost wickets, the first three being down for 19 runs, but N. C. Mahony and T. Dunne increased the total to 49, when Mahony was run out. Dunne continued to bat well, and he hit the winner. Score:—

SLOW SCORING AT SYDNEY PARADE

A dead wicket at Sydney parade on Saturday gave the Pembroke batsmen their opportunity in the Senior Cup semi-final against Phœnix, and they have built up a tremendously strong position with 189 for the loss of only three wickets. It was hard labour; for they spent most of five hours in getting the runs.

M. B. Williams kept up his consistent batting form, but his 61 took two and a half hours. He and Dempsey scored 57 for the first wicket, but the Phœnix fielders were rather kind to Dempsey. After the third wicket had fallen at 111, T. Williams and Murray added 78 without being parted. Boucher bowled with remarkable steadiness over long periods, and has conceded only 49 runs off 27 overs. Play will be resumed at 6.0 this evening. Score:—

ULSTER VICTORY

Ulster beat Leinster by 72 runs in a senior schools' interprovincial match at Blackhall place on Saturday. Martin (48) and Campbell put on 62 for the third Ulster wicket after the opening batsmen had failed and, with most of the other wickets going cheaply, the innings closed for 128. McGinty bowled excellently in taking 8 for 50.

Leinster's hopes of winning soon faded in the face of consistently good bowling by Ritchie and Kyle, and the last wicket fell just over an hour after the start of the innings. Score:—

LOUTH IN LEINSTER G.A.A. FINAL

LOUTH ...... 1-9 OFFALY 2-3

Good football was out of the question at Croke Park yesterday, when Louth qualified for the Leinster final. Thornton (mid-field) and Corr (left wing) were best for Louth, and O'Connor and Burke for Offaly.

Offaly had had a high wind behind them in the first half. O'Connor and Leonard put Offaly 5 pts. clear before Devine scored Louth's first point. Carr (free) and H. Burke exchanged points. Half-time: Offaly 1-3, Louth 0-2.

Carr's accuracy with frees put Louth on level terms at 6 pts. each, and Carr's free put them in front. Joe O'Connor went away on his own for Offaly to shoot a good goal from 35 yards. Coyle recovered the lead for Louth with a goal, and Louth finished with two good points in an exciting finish.

Limerick—Tipperary 3-5, Clare 2-6.
Omagh—Tyrone 1-8, Donegal 0-7.
Clones—Fermanagh 3-8, Antrim 2-6.

BOXING

Jackie Paterson (Glasgow) knocked out Peter Kane after 51 seconds of the first round before 35,000 spectators—a record crowd for a fight in Scotland—at Hampden Park, Glasgow, on Saturday. The match was for the world's fly-weight title.

At Belfast on Saturday, Johnny Ingle (Dublin) beat Jack Josephs (Carrickfergus) on points over six rounds. Jack Clancy, Jimmy Smith and Joe Foley, who were to have appeared, were unable to meet their engagements. Clancy could not get leave, and the others are on the injured list.

Capital Golf by J. B. Carr

By J. P. ROONEY.

J. B. Carr is well set for his second East of Ireland title. At the end of the first 18 of 36 holes at Baltray yesterday he was leading by a stroke from John Burke, and a magnificent second round of 73 left Carr in an almost impregnable position, bar a complete breakdown, for he will resume to-day eight strokes ahead of B. J. Scannell and ten ahead of the holder, Kevin Garvey.

Only those who were out on the course could appreciate the excellence of Carr's second round. It was a day on which one would expect the giants of the game to shine, but even Cecil Ewing, John Burke and John Lyons found the conditions too much for them. Carr, however, with his low, raking drives and accurate putting completely defied the elements. Leading scores:—

Supplies of Good Class Shares Getting Smaller

MARKETS on the Dublin Stock Exchange during the past week were much quieter, and movements, for the most part, were devoid of interest. Holiday influences are already making themselves felt, while the approach of the general election is also having an adverse effect.

Irish Industrials are still favoured, despite the high levels prevailing, but the market in them is becoming smaller every day, chiefly because holders of good-class shares are not willing to sell. They feel that, even if they turn their profits into cash, they will be unable to pick up similar issues at anything like attractive levels.

Under the circumstances, investors have to be content to buy any lots, no matter how small, that come on offer. With market conditions as they are, there seems little likelihood of any lowering of prices in the near future.

The Hammond Lane Foundry Co. is again paying an interim dividend of 3 per cent. on the Ordinary shares. This would lead one to believe that the company continues to do well, despite wartime difficulties. Last year the Ordinary dividend was raised to 12½ per cent., and, if this can be maintained for the current year, these shares look a good lock-up holding; for on this basis they yield £5 19/- at the current price of 42/-.

ARREARS PAID OFF

A good demand has again come along for Salts (Ireland) "A" Ordinary shares, and they are now up to 6/4½. In the report for the past year just issued there was a marked recovery in profits, and the company was able to pay off all the Preference dividend arrears. Many people were disappointed that no dividend payment was made on the Ordinary shares. The report also stated that the mills were closed for some months owing to the impossibility of getting raw materials. Under the circumstances the results are even more encouraging, and, as production was recommenced in January last, some people hold the view that the Ordinary have good speculative attractions.

A few Pye (Ireland) Ordinary shares are available at around 7/3. This company has done well since its formation, and although trading conditions have become more difficult since the outbreak of war, it has continued to give a satisfactory account of itself. For some years past a dividend of 7½ per cent. has been paid, and these 5/- shares look well worth attention at the present price to lock away. With the return of more peaceful times, this company should be in a position to earn bigger profits.

Irish Cinema issues are still meeting with a good measure of attention, and especially the Preference shares, which are now up to 19/6. This company, despite a heavy burden of taxation, is doing well, and the Preference certainly look cheap when compared with the prices ruling for other Preferences in the Irish Industrial group. The new issues of Preference shares in the Capitol and Allied Theatres, Ltd., attracted little public interest, as many people were inclined to wait to see how successful this new combine of picture theatres will be.

HOME RAILS

The market in Home Rails is almost lifeless, and small selling caused a drooping tendency. In the case of Great Southerns, with the outlook so uncertain few people are willing to buy at existing levels, while, on the other hand, holders are loath to throw out their stocks at the present low prices. Some are hoping that the capital reorganisation scheme, when it does come along, will not be so drastic as is generally believed. It is not likely that we will see any great activity in these issues until the position is clarified.

Great Northern issues are dullish in sympathy, and trading is at low ebb. Yet the outlook for this company is somewhat better. It is certainly not faced with the serious fuel position like the Great Southern Company. The Preference, at 40, looks attractive as a war-time holding. It gave a very high yield, and holds scope for improvement.

Wall Street Closes Irregular

The Stock Exchange opened irregular and quiet. The early dealings were very slow, with ragged tendencies prevailing, but selling was unimportant. Scattered fractional recoveries appeared near the close, although declines of fractions to more than one point were widespread. The revival of the labour crisis kept buyers within the conservative ranks, while possible developments over the week-end exercised a restraining influence. The trend at the close was irregular. Sales totalling 303,000 shares comprised 646 issues, of which 176 advanced, 264 declined, and 206 remained unchanged.—(Reuter.)

Government Stocks Recover

FROM OUR FINANCIAL CORRESPONDENT.

THOSE closely following the Stock Markets have made a note of the recovery in British Government Stocks since the Whitsun holiday. The movement has not been large, but it is the right way. Some very substantial transactions have been arranged in the last few days on behalf of the Banks, Insurance and Investment Trusts.

These deals were in the nature of swaps from one security into another, and need not represent any large volume of new money going into the market. The exchanges made indicate that large investors are once again directing attention to the Gilt-edged market, and it is probable that more money will be invested in the older Government stocks. Market dealers on Friday evening rather anticipated further improvement in the Funds during the coming week. While there may be some doubt as to the future of road transport, particularly so far as goods traffic is concerned, passenger omnibus services linking up innumerable villages and towns with each other will certainly continue to be essential. Among the smaller companies engaged in this business is Barton Transport, Ltd., which operates 142 omnibuses over about 650 miles of route in the Midlands. It has been consistently successful. In 1938 the shareholders received a capital bonus of 100 p.c., and 12½ p.c. dividend was paid. This was increased by 2½ p.c. each year to 20 p.c. paid for 1941, a rate which was maintained for the year to September 30, 1942. The capital is £170,000, of which £100,000 is in 4/- Defd. Ord. shares. These are quoted at 14/6, at which they offer a yield of £5 10/4 p.c.

Early next month the final dividend of British Plaster Board, Ltd., should be announced. So far an interim dividend of 10 p.c. has been paid. Last year the dividend was raised from 15 to 25 p.c., the surplus available for dividends being equal to 44 p.c., net profit having increased from £211,506 to £357,827. The capital of the company is £1,748,690, of which £1,598,613 is in 5/- Ordinary shares. These are freely dealt in at about 28/6, at which, on the basis of the last dividend, they offer a return of £4 7/9 p.c.

A report and accounts for the year to March 31 last is issued by Crossley Motors, Ltd. The trading profit last year was £80,985, after providing for E.P.T. and all other taxation, but before meeting depreciation. A comparative figure for the previous year was £77,586.

All-Ireland Athletic Championships

THE All-Ireland athletic championships, under the joint auspices of the A.A.U. (E.) and the N.I.A.A.A., at Belfast on Saturday—the second of this new series of events—were held under conditions that militated against good performances in the field or on the track. The Balmoral grounds were virtually water-logged, and the only record of the afternoon was Nesbitt's Northern Ireland native best with the discus (138ft. in.), over 13ft. below Bermingham's Irish record. But the meeting must not be judged by times and distances; competition was good, and that is more important.

Conway did not defend his titles in the 100 and furlong, and the championships passed to Lyttle, a useful sprinter. Rutherford, too, was a non-starter in the quarter, but here Eire found a new champion in Murphy (Civil Service). Hackett had a runaway win to hold his half-mile, and his 2 mins. 3 secs. was a better performance than it looks on paper. With Tuckey, the Eire champion, an absentee in the mile, Ferguson kept the title in the North for a second year without being extended, and another Northern harrier, McCooke, kept the three miles in Ulster.

Of the fifteen championship events six were won by holders—Hackett, O'Rafferty, Shillington (2), Horan and Healion. Two holders were beaten — Darragh and Mitchell, and four holders did not defend their titles. Ten championships were won by Northern Ireland competitors and five by men from the South.

MANCHESTER REVIEW

There has been a certain amount of slowing down of business in the provision trade in this centre owing to the Whitsuntide holidays, buyers having made arrangements in advance for supplies of most commodities to cover expected requirements. All descriptions of meats, fats and dairy products have moved readily into consumption on the usual control basis. No special feature of interest has materialised, but a firm feeling generally was maintained in all departments. Supplies of salmon have been very short, but increased towards the week-end, and there was a brisk sale at maximum official price of 3/9 per lb. wholesale. The small quantities of dead poultry arriving on the market are quickly snapped up, and there is keen competition on the part of buyers for available birds, mainly fowls at 1/9 per lb wholesale control price.

Great Armament Factory in France Bombed

France's greatest armament factory, the Schneider works at Le Creusot, 170 miles south of Paris, was attacked by British bombers on Saturday night. The works, which cover 270 acres, and have been making guns and armour plate for Germany, were heavily bombed in an attack officially described as "concentrated and effective."

The British Air Ministry communiqué stated: — "Visibility over the target was good, and the works were clearly seen. Other aircraft bombed the electric transformer station at Montchanin, some five miles from Le Creusot.

"Targets in the Ruhr and Rhineland were also bombed, and mines were laid in enemy waters. Aircraft of Fighter Command on intruder patrol attacked enemy airfields and railway targets in France and shipping off the coast. Two enemy aircraft were destroyed. Three of our bombers are missing."

Government and G. S. Railways

A "conglomeration of half-truths and whole lies" is how Mr. Seumas Davin, General Secretary, Fianna Fail, in a letter to the Editor, Irish Times, describes the letter issued by Mr. J. T. O'Farrell concerning Mr. Lemass's statement on the Government's intentions for railway reorganisation. He points out that Mr. Lemass's statement was not a vague promise—it was an outline of the legislation that is in preparation. The Minister conceded that the measures adopted by the Fianna Fail Government in 1933 to put the railways on a paying basis and give railway workers security in employment had not proved fully effective. If they had, no new legislation would now be necessary, but the Government's measures had saved the railways from collapse for ten years. During that period it became clear that the realisation of Fianna Fail's aims for the railways, permanently and fully, required more fundamental treatment, and that was what Mr. Lemass proposed.

"Fianna Fail tried to protect the railways by restricting competition. It did not prove sufficient. It is now necessary to put the railways in a position to beat competition"—these are Mr. Lemass's words. Mr. O'Farrell interprets them as an indication that the Government had "no faith in the future of the railways," and "clearly indicates the intention of his party, if elected, of reducing the Great Southern Railways to a shadow." Mr. O'Farrell must surely have a poor opinion of the intelligence of railway workers if he expects this crude misrepresentation to be taken seriously (writes Mr. Davin).

The intention of the Government is not merely to maintain employment on the railways, but to give it a security it has not got now.

Relations Between Classes

The summer meeting of the Old Girls' Guild was held at St. Margaret's Hall, Dublin, last Friday evening, when Miss Louie Bennett gave a most interesting talk on "Blazing New Trails."

Miss Bennett spoke of the importance of human relationships and of the special opportunities which Eire enjoyed for social planning owing to her neutrality. She referred to the real progress which she herself had witnessed in the relations between classes in Ireland since she became a trade union official twenty-five years ago.

Bodenstown Ceremony

The annual Wolfe Tone commemoration was held at Bodenstown yesterday, when wreaths were laid on his grave by Mr. Oscar Traynor, Minister for Defence, on behalf of the defence forces, and Mr. Sean Fitzpatrick on behalf of the National Graves Association. Mr. Traynor was accompanied by Lieutenant-General D. McKenna, Chief of Staff, and Colonel T. McNally, Officer Commanding the Curragh Command.

Army buglers sounded the "Last Post" and the general salute. Three volleys were fired over the grave by cadets from the Military College.

Mr. Donal O'Donoghue delivered the oration.

To-morrow's Test

While ninety per cent. of the land surface of the world is at war, the twenty-six counties will indulge to-morrow in the luxury of a general election. Readers are aware how deeply we deplore the fact. A general election was not necessary, and could have been averted, at any time until a few weeks ago, if the leader of one particular party had been willing to rise above his personal prejudices. It was decreed, however, that an election must be held; and to-morrow the people will attend the polls, not with any enthusiasm, but out of a sense of their democratic duty. There are rumours that many of them, bewildered by the campaign of the past month, and torn by the conflicting demands of expediency and party loyalty, will not take the trouble to vote at all. That attitude is bad. A whole day is left during which the vacillating voter can make up his mind; and, however he makes it up, he ought to rise to-morrow with a clear intention to be present at his polling booth, rain or fine, before it closes. The man who votes, and later finds cause to regret his vote, may reproach himself for a lack of foresight; but, while democracy is on trial, there is no excuse for abstention. For that matter, he must not seek—as some propose—to justify abstention with the plea that little attention has been paid during the campaign to the matters which are of fundamental interest to the average man. That plea also is undemocratic and bad. It is true, however, that there has been lamentably little talk about the cost of living, in comparison with the millions of words which have been spilled about what this or that party did, or did not do, in the past. We have been told from alternate platforms that the Statute of Westminster and the 1937 Constitution are, each of them, the source of Ireland's neutrality in the present war. We are not told what plans exist for the assurance of food and fuel during the coming winter. There has been curiously little discussion on housing plans—except in the broadest and vaguest terms—on community feeding, on price control. Many candidates have concentrated on the tide of emigration—few on the return of the immigrants. The war may continue, so far as anybody can tell, for years, or it may end at any moment. How many candidates have given serious thought to the situation that will follow the armistice? The two or three years after 1918 were almost as terrible, to millions of people throughout the world, as any stage of the Great War itself: who is to deny that conditions may be equally bad, or worse, after the present war? Let it be admitted that man's sight is short, and that the formulation of a policy for a new Ireland—an Ireland living under conditions that cannot yet be contemplated—is beyond the power of any statesman, and certainly of any single party. That is no reason why the election campaign should have concentrated upon past achievements rather than on the task to come. It is, on the other hand, one of the very sound reasons why this newspaper has continued to stress the claims of National against party Government. A National Government would mean a united Oireachtas, in which there would be no room for the cynicism—and, too often, the bad temper and bitterness—which have marked the present campaign. Division has been an expensive luxury in this nation's past: it may be tragically expensive in the approaching years. If the people agree, they will vote to-morrow for National Government; but, whatever their view may be, they must not abstain from the polls.

Irish Records

According to the Director of the British Film Institute, Ireland's records in news-reel form are very scanty, indeed. There are a few items in the Institute's collection concerning such things as the departure of General O'Duffy's volunteers to Spain, the inception of the trans-Atlantic service from Foynes, and the all-party meetings calling for unity in the cause of neutrality at the beginning of the war. Probably the company concerned could supplement those records if necessary; but, since the recent disappearance of the Irish news-reel service, the blank will be absolute. "Feature" films concerning Ireland include "Man of Aran" and the home-made "Dawn," as well as a few more or less—usually less—effective film versions of writers such as Sean O'Casey. Finally, the list includes a few "travelogues," some of them meritorious, but far too many tainted with that lyrical adulation which seems to strike every American director the moment he sees a sunset in an un-built-up area. On the whole, then, Ireland is poorly represented on the screen. This is to be explained, partly, by the official attitude to the cinema. It is considered primarily as an institution which can be made to contribute, by entertainment tax, to the national exchequer. Apart from that useful function, its presence is tolerated, but not approved. To the cinema we attribute juvenile crime, laxity of morals, permanent waving, the destruction of the language, the increase in shoplifting, and the popularity of foreign dances. It is the standard scapegoat of the present day. Nobody but the Minister for Finance, however—certainly not the Minister for Education—appears to display any further interest in it. Yet, as need hardly be emphasised, the cinema is—for better or for worse—one of the most important influences in Irish life. We recognise that it is important enough to be inhibited by a censorship. We do not recognise that it is important enough to foster by proper official support—first, perhaps, by the establishment of a national film library to collect living records of our great events and of our great men, later by the development of a small, but solid, home film industry, which might at last show the world something of Ireland through Irish eyes.

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL

Preaching in Christ Church Cathedral, Dublin, yesterday, the Dean, the Very Rev. E. H. Lewis-Crosby, said that Trinity Sunday was a day when their thoughts turned towards the existence and nature of God. They were all agnostics to some extent. Yet there were certain truths about the Godhead that man could know, and which should be the inspiration and guide of their lives. That was the Patronal Festival of their Cathedral of the Holy Trinity. It was a great privilege to be attached to a cathedral which was not only the most beautiful, but also the oldest building in the city, where the worship of God had been maintained for over 900 years.

The Canticles were sung to Stanford in C. The anthems were: "Blessing and Glory," by Boyce, and "Thee, Lord Before the Close of Day," by Gardiner.

The collection was given to the Dublin Hospital Sunday Fund.

AT ALBERT COLLEGE

The herd of dairy shorthorns, the milk from which is distributed to the Infant Aid Society; the herd of Irish large white pigs, the new variety of oats bred in the college, and the plant-breeding department were some of the things seen by members of the Geographical Society of Ireland and by members of Dublin City branch of Muintir na Tire, who visited Albert Agricultural College, Dublin, last Saturday afternoon.

The parties were received by Professor J. P. Drew, Director of the college, and were shown around the college farm, orchards, and gardens by members of the college staff. Afterwards the guests were entertained to tea.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE MARSH BUILDING SOCIETY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—The Marsh Building Society has gained much unexpected publicity of late. I find it necessary to clarify the rather confused situation which has arisen, owing to this publicity.

The facts are:—Following a letter to the press dealing with the slum conditions in the Marsh, I was invited by Mr. William Dwyer to get a committee together to formulate a building scheme. On the 13th November, 1936, the committee was formed from his staff, every member of which gave his services voluntarily.

The first eight houses were built with the aid of subscriptions contributed by a few generous businessmen, who for obvious reasons desired to remain anonymous. Between 1939 and 1941, eleven more houses were built, principally from the proceeds of two carnivals which were organised by a committee, of which Mr. Frank Walsh was chairman. The helpers in these carnivals, to the number of more than 160, also gave their services voluntarily.

Time and again, on behalf of the Marsh Building Society, I have thanked all those who were kind enough to help with their money or their services, or both. Is it necessary to do so again?—Yours, etc.,

R. J. DALTON, C.C., Chairman, Marsh Building Society.
SS. Peter and Paul's, Cork.
June 18th, 1943.

AFTER THE WAR

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—More important than any of the questions raised during the election campaign is the fact that the Government chosen by the Dail after the election will almost certainly be in power at the end of the war. The prosperity of this country for generations may well depend on its relations with the British Commonwealth, the United States and other nations in the period after the cessation of the war.

Is a party Government, supported by deputies all of whom are pledged to support Mr. de Valera's personal policy, more likely to establish close and friendly relations with other nations than a National Government free from rigid party ties? To my mind, this is the outstanding issue for the voters to decide on Tuesday next.

It is because I do not believe that Mr. de Valera is the man best suited to deal with the situation after the war that I propose to vote only for candidates who, I believe, will support the proposal for a National Government.—Yours, etc.,

J. HAROLD DOUGLAS.

HOSPITAL'S YEAR OF PROGRESS

A year of "real progress" is recorded in the annual report of St. Anne's City Hospital for Diseases of the Skin and Cancer, Northbrook road, Dublin, and St. Brigid's, Kilternan, Co. Dublin. Reserve stocks of X-ray apparatus had been secured, despite great difficulty, and from an expectation of a few months of life this department was now capable of carrying on for five or six years. The hospital bought 160 milligrams of radium during the year, which had been particularly useful in treating certain cancer cases.

Transport had been the greatest difficulty at St. Anne's, where patients often failed to arrive from the country, but, nevertheless, the percentage of beds occupied only fell very slightly to 78.69. There were 1,108 in-patients and 5,324 out-patients treated during the year, compared with 1,053 and 4,986 during 1941. The Knights of Malta had placed an ambulance at the disposal of the hospital, which lessened transport difficulties. There were 690 cases of malignant disease seen during the year, of which 522 were treated.

The report ends with an appeal for voluntary help, in order to allow the hospital to keep up its good work.

FILM NOTES

BY OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT.

No Time for Love (Savoy) is a pleasant, if superficial comedy romance, cleverly acted and capably directed. Claudette Colbert (not too well dressed) appears as a sophisticated Press photographer, who finds herself infatuated with Fred MacMurray, a brawny but likeable "heel," who spends his time working thigh-deep in mud in a subterranean tunnel. Both the theme and its treatment are as old as the proverbial hills, but the screen play is witty and the delivery of the pert lines is perfect. Mitchell Leisen—who made such a good job of "Green-eyed Woman"—directed, and uses his polished technique to best advantage.

Footlight Serenade (Carlton)—Twentieth Century Fox have become expert at turning out fast-moving, tuneful "leg shows," which keep you amused and agreeable without straining your intellect. This film is in the "My Gal Sal" tradition—pretty numbers by Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger, together with Victor Mature and innumerable chorus girls, with more paint than costume. Mature has progressed considerably, and the story writers have given him the part of a bumptious and conceited matinée idol, a part which he makes convincing with a minimum of effort. Betty Grable is still Betty Grable, which means that no one will be disappointed.

Silver Queen (Royal) provides a marked contrast to the splendid "Strange Incident" shown in this house last week. It is a somewhat complicated story of a Nevadan silver mine and it is not greatly helped by mediocre acting and dead-and-alive direction. George Brent, Priscilla Lane and Bruce Cabot have the longest parts in it; little more can be said for them.

It's Love I'm After (Metropole)—This re-issue is, frankly, the best entertainment in town—a delightful comedy, with good situations and intelligent dialogue. Unfortunately, you will find it hard to forget that the star died tragically a few weeks ago, and that we shall be seeing no more of that charming actor, Leslie Howard. Mr. Howard was a talented and modest gentleman, with constructive ideas and a delightful manner. His loss is a very bitter and genuine one.

Here you can see him in the gay, romantic type of rôle which he filled to perfection, and as the support is in the hands of performers like Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland and Eric Blore, you can rest assured that this is no "one-man show."

The Irish in Us (Capitol) is saved from bathos by sheer force of Cagney. That great little actor has so vital a personality that I did not mind seeing him for the third time within a month. This re-issue, however, is rather unfortunate; it is drenched in false sentiment, and the Irish folk in it all conform to the Hollywood conception of the Irish temperament. It probably would be more appreciated in any other country in the world.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles na gCopaleen

FRIGHTFUL thing happened the other day. I know what I'm going to tell you is a little bit indelicate, but life can be indelicate too, just as it can be rather beautiful. If you do not wish to read my anecdote, pray why should you? We have some alternative fare over on the lefthand side ←, I am told it is great stuff though I do not know how he keeps it up every day. He took the wind-up of the Tunisian business very badly, they tell me. No more long explanations, predictions or recollections. It was a great blow to him. And now, saving your absence, let me tell my story. A friend brought me into a public-house and bought drinks. (Drinks, mind you, not bags of coal.) We drank slowly, conversing in French. When the drinks were drunk, I, being a gentleman, called the attendant and told him to bring the same again.

"Beg pardon sir."

"The same again please."

"I beg your pardon sir."

"Bring the same again please!"

"But, sir——."

"Will you bring the same again, please, and hurry!"

"O, very well sir."

Then there is a pause. He disappears. Then, very white-faced, he puts his head through a door and says "Would you gentlemen mind stepping this way please," this way please." We obey mechanically. Small inner room gleaming with surgical utensils and a thing like a dentist's chair. And standing there is a sinister figure in a white coat holding in his hand, of all things, a small silver-mounted stomach-pump! Some people make rather a fetish of this thing called "service." They are too ready to believe that the customer is always right.

An Extract

"This will be the ninth general election in the twenty-six counties since those fateful days in Earlsfort Terrace more than twenty-two years ago, when a majority of the elected deputies decided to accept the Anglo-Irish Treaty. Much water has flown under O'Connell Bridge since that historic occasion. . . ."

Irish Times.

Several comments occur to me. We will make no mention of either fateless days or unhistoric occasions, but we will primly inquire, looking vacantly out of the window the while, what in heaven's name an unelected deputy is. We will forbear to ask why this gathering was not concerning itself with the Anglo-Persian Treaty. It may be true that much water has flown under O'Connell Bridge since that historic occasion, but three things are to be noted: (a) there would be no point in having the bridge there at all unless there were water flowing under it; (b) the alleged bridge would have been fantastically botched in construction if the water had been flowing over it; and (c) the image is pointless inasmuch as the river is tidal at this point, and nearly as much water flows up as flows down.

Finally, the association of ideas as between water and Earlsfort terrace is too obvious to be laboured.

Another Extract

This is a bit, freely translated, from Slighe an Eolais, the school book I mentioned the other day.

"The kitchen she is the most important room in the farmhouse for it is in her that are eaten the meals and it is there that the neighbours gather at night-time for divarsion, especially, as you might say, when there is a houseful in it for the occasion of Turf-Cutting Night or Threshing Night. And it is beside the big fire in the kitchen in the winter time that the long Fenian stories do be told, or the affairs of the day put through each other while the girls of the house do be knitting or sewing. But it is not for amusement alone that the neighbours always come—they come a few times a year to kill pigs . . ."

As a person who reads the newspapers I find the word "pigs" there rather whimsical.

GREAT PIANIST AT THEATRE ROYAL

Solomon, the world-famed pianist, drew a large audience to the Theatre Royal on Saturday afternoon last, for the first of a series of celebrity concerts to be given in that theatre during the autumn and winter months. The outstanding feature of this recital was the delicate sensitiveness and imagery shown by Solomon—his breath-taking mastery of technique one took for granted—one felt that a slip was a sheer impossibility. The real thrill came from his poetic reading of the different composers. One could not conceive a more beautiful presentation of the Beethoven Sonata Op. 53 (Waldstein), especially the intimate manner in which the opening Allegro was stated. The Beethoven was preceded by three Brahms pieces, including the G minor Rhapsody of Opus 79—which was played with a fine sense of the dramatic, though many of his hearers preferred the more trasparent Intermezzi—that in B flat minor, and the second in C major—which were full of romantic feeling and rhythmic movement.

In the second session Solomon delighted everyone with his gift of picture-painting in the Carnival, Op. 9, of Schumann. The work is made up of a series of twenty-one musical pictures based on various characters and incidents in a masked ball and on real persons—Florestan and Eusebius, for example, represent Schumann's conception of his own dual personality, Chiarina (Clara Wieck-Schumann's wife), Paganini and others. Solomon caught all the changes of mood and the fund of humour which Schumann put into these studies ending with a rare flourish in the Marche of the Davidsbundler against the Philistines.

MAGEOUGH HOME FETE

A most successful American Tea and Fete was held at the Mageough Home, Cowper road, Dublin, on Saturday afternoon. The Most Rev. Dr. Barton, Archbishop of Dublin, declared the fete open, and there was an attendance of over 400. Among those who helped at the stalls were: Mrs. H. Roberts, Miss Jackson, Miss Hicks, Mrs. Gray, the Misses Cox, Mrs. Jagoe and Dr. Warren.

IRISH DISTRESSED LADIES' FUND

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of The Irish Distressed Ladies' Fund, held at 6 Merrion square, Dublin, on Friday last, Lady Moore presiding, the Pension list for July was submitted and cheques amounting to £67 12s. were ordered to be issued. Grants were authorised to assist necessitous cases during the remainder of June and on 1st July amounting to £207 18s. 8d.

Magdalen Church.—The Bishop of Tuam was the special preacher at the Magdalen Church, Lower Leeson street, Dublin, on last Sunday week, and not, as stated in Saturday's issue, on yesterday. The day was observed as Missionary Sunday, and offerings at all services were given to the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in foreign parts. The preacher at Evening Prayer was the Rev. Noel H. F. Waring, M.A.

Had Nothing to Pay Hotel Bill.—That she had stayed at the Royal Hibernian Hotel for over a week, incurred a debt of £5 19s. 9d. and had nothing to pay her bill, was alleged in Dublin District Court on Saturday, when Frances Doyle (18), Golden Bridge avenue, Kilmainham, was remanded until Wednesday, charged with having incurred the debt and obtained credit by fraud. She was also charged with illegal possession of a bracelet, a signet ring, and a gold watch.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

That L.D.F. Tie

Your correspondent, writes another correspondent, is quite wrong in the cold water he pours on your idea of an L.D.F. tie. Ties are being made in Dublin, and will continue to be made. It will take no more material to make L.D.F. ties than the ties of "gay, distinctive sports designs" which are advertised by a local manufacturer in your current issue.

Registration is also possible. It can be done commercially or—more simply—the artist who designs the tie can rely on the law of copyright. No one can "publish"—even in the form of a made up tie—the work of an artist without his permission. And if the artist makes a present of his copyright to the L.D.F. it will be up to the L.D.F. to make such arrangements with the manufacturer and the dealer as will guard against unauthorised sales, or other "publication" or "breach of copyright."

Your correspondent is also, apparently, unaware that certain branches of the Army already have their own distinctive ties. The artillery, for instance, has its blue and gold diagonal stripes, and the cavalry its red, black and green. University College members of the O.T.C. originally had a corps tie consisting of the College colours on a dark green background. Their successors in the Regiment of Pearse had a regimental tie of maroon and gold. And, finally, I now hear that the Maritime Inscription has a tie "on the stocks."

The L.D.F. had better hurry.

Journalist Candidate

I am told that Michael Sweeney, who was for many years in Dublin newspaper life, is conducting a very effective compaign in Meath. Last time he polled well in the 1938 general election, and should reach the Dail now, since his support has very much increased. His native Kells, I hear is backing him wholeheartedly.

This tall, scholarly Meath man, who passed from the leader writer's chair on a Dublin daily to the Bar some years ago, is a strong advocate of the National Government idea for months past, and his speech at the recent big meeting in Mullingar deeply impressed his leader, Mr. Cosgrave. Fine Gael needs new blood in its party ranks, and particularly promising young men of Michael Sweeney's calibre. Of farming stock, the whole trend of his outlook and policy is towards the improvement of agriculture, and his ideas for the future of the industry have won him widespread support amongst the North Meath farmers.

Some years ago, when he was editing The Star, the Cumann na nGaedheal weekly, he was advocating a scheme of social insurance to provide pensions for all, which would enable many workers to retire at 65 and afford greater opportunities for young people. But his conception for an Irish plan of social security was regarded as too ambitious then.

It looks now as if time and Sir William Beveridge may prove that the ideas of this Meath man were sound and workable after all.

Stephen Barrett

I was not surprised to find that Stephen Barrett, a colleague of the Cork Examiner, has branched out into play-writing. His first little comedy, a copy of which has just come to me, is called "Credits Due," and reflects the humour that those who worked with Stephen found so entertaining.

A colleague tells me that he spent the best part of two weeks in Stephen's company during the big Army manœuvres last year, when Stephen covered the exercises for Radio Eireann. I remember hearing his broadcasts and getting a fine picture of the hardships and the fun of army life in the field.

During his reporting days Stephen travelled a good deal for the Cork paper, and was popular everywhere he went — particularly in Dublin, where his visits were looked forward to by Dublin newspapermen. Since that he has taken over the foreign news sub-editing, and has married.

When I met him last he had one daughter and had all the appearance of a man who was settling down—I hope to serious writing, for he can write well, as this little play shows.

Trinity Monday

I perceive that Professor H. O. White, the Professor of English Literature in Dublin University, is to deliver the annual Trinity Monday discourse from the pulpit of the College Chapel this evening — this evening, not this morning.

There are two breaches with Trinity tradition. It is one thing that the annual sermon — in this case, on Edward Dowden—should be delivered of an evening. It is another, and even more violent, breach with tradition that the sermon should be declaimed by a layman. I am confident that it will not be the less authoritative or interesting on that account.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE ANNUAL REVIEW

"Our efforts have largely been to maintain efficiency of all our Divisions in preparation for an emergency, which we pray may not arise—yet I must once again impress on all ranks that this danger is still a very real one, and we must not permit an attitude of complacency to interfere with that preparation until the danger is passed," said Sir John Lumsden, Commissioner, St. John Ambulance Brigade in Ireland, at the annual review held on Saturday last in the Irish Rugby Football Union Grounds, Lansdowne road, Dublin.

The Commissioner, who was accompanied by Major Stewart, Deputy Director of Medical Services, in the absence of Colonel McKinney, added that the Brigade was primarily a peace-time organisation. The future held great possibilities, and it was intended to further develop and continue the various activities of the Brigade when the menace of war was passed.

The food problem and deficiency in diet at present were already showing that rickets was appearing among young children in an alarming fashion, and gastro-enteritis and summer diarrhœa later on might take toll of many little lives, which, unquestionably could be saved if a proper dietary with adequate calcium phosphates and vitamins could be provided.

About 1,000 members of all the branches of the Brigade and auxiliary services took part in the review, and a running commentary was provided by Dr. J. F. Eustace, District Officer.

About six hundred members of the Brigade took part in a parade yesterday afternoon to the Franciscan Church, Merchant's Quay, Dublin. The Service was conducted by the Rev. Father Sylvester O'Brien, O.F.M. The parade was under Assistant Commissioner J. P. McNamara; Miss M. Kane, District Officer, and Miss E. Kane in charge of the women's reserves. Mrs. Peadar Doyle, Lady Mayoress, and Dr. K. Reddin, Medical Officer of the A.R.P. Services, were present.

TO ALL TRADE UNIONISTS

As the central authority in the Trade Union Movement in Ireland, the National Executive of the Irish Trade Union Congress appeals to you to Vote on Tuesday, June 22nd, for the Candidates of the Labour Party before you vote for any other Candidate.

By your vote on June 22nd you can influence the legislation that concerns you as a wage-earner and as a Trade Unionist.

As a Trade Unionist you want to get rid of the Emergency Powers Orders that prevent you from getting the wage increases you need to help you to meet the rising prices of the food, clothing and services that are the first call on you and your family.

You want an All-in Social Insurance Scheme that will combine unemployment benefit, hospital treatment, old age, widows' and orphans' and blind persons' pensions, funeral benefits, workmen's compensation compulsory on all employers, family allowances and all social services in one pool under the direction and control of one Minister and one Department.

You want to free your Trade Union from all the restrictions and delays and unnecessary expense which hamper it in carrying out its legitimate purpose and function of freely bargaining with employers on your wages and working conditions.

Your Vote on June 22nd can get all these for you if you use it properly. To use it properly you must Vote First for the Labour Party Candidates, because they are the only Candidates who will act upon the advice of your Trade Union. By voting for them you can right the wrongs you and your families have suffered through Government legislation, Government Emergency Orders and Government incompetence.

The Labour Party Candidates are your Candidates before all other Candidates. Be as loyal to them in the voting booth on June 22nd as you would be loyal to your Trade Union in a wage dispute.

TRADE UNIONISTS! WORKERS!

Vote Labour Party before anything else. Don't miss this opportunity. Answer the call of Trade Unionism and Vote the Labour Party to Victory and to Power.

Signed on behalf of the National Executive of the IRISH TRADE UNION CONGRESS.

CATHAL O'SHANNON, Secretary.

ELIMINATION OF ALDERMAN BYRNE?

Will the elimination of Alderman Byrne take place? THAT IS A QUESTION THAT'S BEING ASKED BY MANY PEOPLE IN MY AREA.

If any of my friends who voted Number One for me in previous elections remain absent or drop me to second votes in the belief that I am safe without their first vote, then, there is a danger that I will be eliminated.

My big vote in the Municipal Elections is often quoted and the following damaging words, "Alfie is all right, he is safe," are used. When my friends read the following results of First Preferences of the successful candidates in the last Dail Election:—

TRAYNOR	10,318	WILL THEY PAUSE AND ASK "IS BYRNE SAFE?"
MULCAHY	9,072
BYRNE	7,368

The big vote in the last Municipal Elections is quoted to make it appear that I am sure of election to-morrow (Tuesday, 22nd), and my friends may slacken down. It is not generally known that the gerrymandered constituency of N.E. Dublin which I, now represent (although nearly defeated in 1938) is vastly different from my Municipal Area.

Eight thousand voters, the whole Mountjoy Ward, which was in my Municipal Area and from which I received a goodly number of First Votes, and Howth, with approximately four thousand votes, both are now outside my area, and no friend of mine in either of these districts who voted for me in the Municipal Elections is eligible to cast a single vote for me to-morrow (Tuesday).

It is estimated that I have lost at least three thousand votes by losing the Mountjoy Ward and Howth areas.

If, with all these disadvantages, coupled with a very determined effort to get me out of An Dail, my friends in the present reduced gerrymandered area voluntarily start to drop me to second votes, then the boast of my opponents, that—Alfie is sure to go—may be realised.

I FIGHT WITHOUT PARTY FUNDS OR PARTY ORGANISATIONS. I appeal to my friends to AVERT MY DEFEAT. I MUST PULL UP THE LOSSES CAUSED BY HOWTH BEING OUT, BY THE MOUNTJOY WARD BEING CUT OFF, and, as a writer in a recent issue of the Labour Journal, "The Torch," said Alderman Byrne has lost a large number of friends who were removed from his area to Crumlin and Cabra following the bombing of the North Strand. With all these handicaps I have been faced with ANOTHER SET-BACK—A LARGE PACKET OF MY ELECTION ADDRESSES TO THE RESIDENTS OF CLONTARF AND DOLLYMOUNT HAVE BEEN MISLAID OR DESTROYED.

Further worries have been added to the load by constantly hearing of the abuse and misrepresentation by one of the candidates who accuses me of pocketing £22,500 of the citizens' money which I received as salary for nine years as Lord Mayor. I have frequently stated that not a single penny of the salary was ever put to my personal use. I spent it all, and just a little more with it, in a humble effort to remove pain; to ease burdens and to relieve distress.

TO ALL THOSE WHO HELPED AND WILL HELP ME TO OVERCOME THESE DIFFICULTIES,

Many thanks. Sincerely,

ALFIE BYRNE
